

Major Businesses Hit New Bumps with Vaccine Rules
May 19, 2021

Businesses that decide to enforce mask mandates for unvaccinated workers have some rights, experts say, but some might decide it's not worth a confrontation.

"The issue there is you're really on the honor system. You can ask to see the COVID vaccination card, that's completely within the employers' rights. Outside of that, you're taking the employees' words," said Rob Wilson, president of Employco USA and a human resources expert.

Some companies have offered perks for getting the vaccine, like cash bonuses, though most have stopped short of mandating employees get the vaccine.

WSFA 12 News: Experts discuss employers and COVID-19 vaccinations
April 28, 2021

Rob was interviewed by Ashley Bowerman with WSFA 12 News - they discussed if employers can require proof if employees have been vaccinated against COVID-19.

"Typically, in the past I couldn't ask my employees if they've had the measles shot or mumps, but you can with COVID.

If it's just – 'we're taking statistics, how many people are vaccinated' - and you don't feel like answering the question, from a privacy standpoint, you're completely ok with not answering it."

Here's What Working Parents Should Envy About Norway (and It's Not Just the Electric Cars)
February 12, 2021

"Norway's policies are generous: Dads get 15 weeks of non-transferable, use-it-or-lose-it paid leave. And, overall, new parents can take 49 weeks at 100 percent of earnings or 59 weeks at 80 percent of earnings. Whereas, on average across developed countries, mothers are entitled to about 18 weeks of paid maternity leave —and fathers have access to about eight weeks of paid leave overall.

Contrast that with the U.S., where 76 percent of fathers go back to work within a week after the birth or adoption of a child. And one in four women are back within 10 days of giving birth, according to Rob Wilson, president of Employco USA, a national employment solutions firm.

The new normal: PTO, bonuses being used to get employees to take vaccine February 09, 2021

Whether it’s $100 or offering additional time off, Rob Wilson, president of Employco USA, a national employment solutions firm, told Ladders that offering employees incentives to get the vaccine benefits both employee and employer.

“From a company standpoint, your end goal is going to reduce the number of sick days and really get your business back open and into full force with people back in your company,” Wilson said.

The upheavals of 2020—pandemic and social unrest—presented human resources executives with unimaginable challenges. When COVID-19 set in, HR executives sent office staff home to work remotely and added safety features to plants and warehouses. They extended benefits such as additional paid time off and flexible schedules to accommodate parents with school-age children at home. And they developed virtual hiring and onboarding processes while devising ways to keep remote workers engaged. Then, with the killing of George Floyd in May and demonstrations for social justice, HR executives led their organizations to take a fresh look at their diversity, equity and inclusion efforts. They changed their methods of recruiting to attract candidates of diverse backgrounds, established resource groups and implemented implicit bias training. All this while handling the day-to-day basics of administering payroll and benefits and tracking performance. These 54 managers met the mark and then some. By Judith Crown

Employers debate whether to require COVID-19 vaccine for workers
December 06, 2020

Rob Wilson, president of Employco USA and human resources expert, said employees should expect some companies, especially large corporations or front-line industries, to require they get the vaccine.

“It’s a serious liability, not just financially but also when it comes to alerting your staff and customers and making sure you’re doing your due diligence to protect everyone under your company umbrella,” Wilson said.

He added that company-sponsored injection sites and reminders about taking a vaccine by a certain date are likely to start popping up soon.

Coping With COVID-19 in the Workplace
November 01, 2020

Rob Wilson joined Bob Bowman of SupplyChainBrain for a video interview.

“Rob Wilson, president of Employco USA, offers advice on how employers should protect workers from contracting the coronavirus in the workplace, and what action to take when they do.

It’s not a question of if one of your employees contracts COVID-19, but when, says Wilson. Businesses need to know how to react to the presence of the virus. At the same time, they must balance the need for ensuring worker safety with the necessity of keeping the business afloat.

COMPLIANCE WEEK

FOR THE WELL-INFORMED CHIEF COMPLIANCE OFFICER AND AUDIT EXECUTIVE

Mandate COVID-19 vaccines for all employees?
Like everything, it’s complicated
October 06, 2020

“We’re still waiting for a vaccine to be released,” said Rob Wilson, president of Employco, a human resources outsourcing firm. “I think it’s a decision people will have to make on their own.”

In the event a coronavirus vaccine is developed that is safe, effective, and widely available, even then a vaccine mandate may not be the way to go.
